Seriously Hurt. Joel Walker, of near Pleasant Grove, and one of the best known farmers of Colerain township, received injuries from J. Gregg and J. B. Hosick, of Allegheny a fall on Tuesday afternoon which, it is feared, will prove very serious. He was removing his hay ladders from the toolhouse preparatory to beginning harvest, when he fell a distance of fifteen feet, striking on his back and sustaining a concussion of the lungs. His injuries are accounted as of a grave character, but it is sincerely hoped by his many friends that he will be able to pull

Charged With Embezzlement. Charles C. Myers, a freight agent of the Wheeling and Lake Erie R. R. at Martin's Ferry, was arrested on Friday, charged with embezzlement of nearly $1000. The officers of the company claim that he has been short every month for about a year, having taken from $75 to $100 each month. Will Be Taken Up.

The Martin's Ferry Times announ that the case of Arick and others against A.R.Leyda and others will be taken to the Circuit Court, the Common Pleas Court having decided in favor of the defendants. The case of Smith against Levda will also be taken up, and it is proposed to fight the whole matter through the highest courts, since questions have been raised which have not been passed on by the higher courts.

The following teachers were elected in Colerain township last Saturday: No. 1, K. H. Cope; No. 2, Ross A. Wells; No. 3, E. W. Dungan; no election in 4 and 5; No. 10, Miss M. McGrew. The term of employment is eight months, and the salary of each $40 per mouth.

Time to be Rid of Them The state of morals was probably never worse than just at present in this place. Not only has drunkenness greatly increased, but at least one house of prostitution is known to exist openly. Brazen faced females parade the streets at night and the peace of the town is broken almost nightly by the revels of these moral lepers. It is time that something was done to rid the town of such char-

The Democrats hereabouts are doing no small amount of kicking over the delay in entering into the posession of the offices. The newspapers are grumbling, but still the offices do not come. The whom is yet a mystery. He had been in company with Tillie Cutshaw, a frail woman of the town, and it is believed that she knows more about the matter than she has yet told. She says that Mc-Cabe, while with her, complained of being sick and laid down; that she brought some water in his hat from the river and bathed his face, and that she then left him. She denies that anything happened believed that he was dead when she left, but she said nothing about him to any one. She was arrested and held on the became engaged in a brawl near the Northern depot. It seems that a man named Fulmer had bought a coat from Ad Taylor. Taylor alleged that Fulmer had not paid him for the coat. while Fulmer expressed an opinion contrary to that held by Taylor. Others who wanted to see fair play and a fight, interfered and took sides. The party then adjourned to the vicinity of the turntable. Further scrapping ensued until finally, as the tale goes, Frank Horn drew a revolver and fired at Fulmer, the ball inflicting a slight scalp wound. Fulmer at once concluded that he had had enough and retired from the field. The others returned to town and said nothing about the affray. All the party had been drinking. $60,000 Bonds Sold.

The Commissioners on Thursday again offered for sale the $140,000 of county and bridge bonds. There were no foreign bidders present, and local capitalists had everything to themselves. The $60, 000 of bridge bonds were sold to the First National of Barnesville, the People's National and the Belmont National at par. Each bank is said to take $20,000. The $80,000 county bonds were not sold, and the Commissioners have postponed consideration of the question of their dispo sal until their next meeting. The fact that there were no foreign capitalists represented is a proof of the stringency in financial circles. Here are acres of pictures, but you are bewildered and the zest of your appreciation gone before you find the est pictures. This building is near the Ohio Building, and a good plan is to go early before the crowds get in, and while it is cool, and while you are fresh. The best pictures are found in galleries 40, 41, and 42 of the United States section, and belong to the "loan collection." Here you will find twelve paintings by Corot, each repaying richly a careful study, but particularly "The Flight from Sodom." "Orpheus." "The Dance of the Nymphs." and "Evening." There are three picture by Daubigny, three by Diaz, four by Rousseau, two by Bastien-Lepage, and eight by Millet. In fact, these three ooms are full of master works, and contain the cream of the show. Millet's "Sheep Shearers" and the "Man with the

If one cannot be the only one in the field for Senator, enthuse over this, it may be presumed that he has little reverence for history.

By night the large plaza containing in its centre a basin, and surrounded by vast structures, sparkling all over with countless sparks, is a sight to be remembered. Brilliant search lights flare over the scene at intervals; great electric fountains leap all the tints of the rainbow; the famous Sonsa's band plays as it only can: and the sense jaded by the sight-seeing of the and above that petty corruption which day is soothed and the imagination stimulated until one may well believe himself in some magical Kubla Khan of
